

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The iterations required for the convergence of a computer-implemented optimization process based on a genetic model are reduced, and the flexibility of the process is increased through mapping multiple characteristics of a system to be 5 optimized to a single gene within a chromosome.